INJUNCTION TO BE TRIED AT ASHLAND
SATURDAY, FEB. 5JUDGE CISCO WILL HEAR THE
CASE INVOLVING THE MAYO
TRAIL PROJECT.

On Saturday of this week the injunction suit brought by County Attorney D. L. Thompson will be heard at Ashland by Judge A. N. Cisco. This suit is to restrain the county of Lawrence from paying the appropriation made by the fiscal court on the Mayo Trail and the advancement voted for completing the main necessary to letting a contract for Lawrence county's part of the road.

The fiscal court and advisory commission were called together Tuesday to pass upon the question of employing counsel to resist the injunction. The County attorney opposed a motion to employ counsel and threatened another injunction against such action if taken. The court and commission each voted to employ lawyers. Upon motion of J. Garred and John W. Woods were selected, they having already been doing work in the case and having made a trip to Frankfort.

It has been explained in these columns before that the State has not enough money to meet the amount available from the Federal government for the fiscal year ending in June, 1921. If Kentucky fails to put up dollar for dollar of the amount offered by the government in any year, the money at we fail to cover is then apportioned to some other State. It is necessary to cover it, and we lose that amount forever.

The State administration asks all counties on Federal aid routes to appropriate enough on their own roads to enable the State to get the Federal money and start work this year. Once started the roads will be built. It is delayed there is danger of the Federal plan being changed, as heretofore explained, under a bill now before Congress. In this event the Big Sandy valley would not receive a dollar for any road not already under contract. Therefore, delay is dangerous.

The State administration is trying very hard to make a record in road building. It is the only chance of the present administration to do anything worth while. But this is a feature that should not enter into the effort to get a million dollars worth of roads given to Lawrence county and maintained forever by the State and nation. The only reason we refer to this point here is that a contemptible effort has been made by peanut politicians to use politics in killing the Mayo Trail enterprise.

We want good roads in Lawrence county. In comparison with this subject, politics is too insignificant to be thought of in the same year. We do not care anything about the politics of the administration or set of men that will enable Lawrence county and the Big Sandy valley to get good roads. This subject has been a hobby with the Big Sandy News for 35 years. We stand ready to give full credit to anybody and everybody who helps to accomplish the building of good roads. All parts of this county and valley. This is a job that no one man can do. It will require the harmonious action of the citizenship and of the officials, county and state, with all the help possible from the Federal government.

Without good roads there is no hope for the future of Lawrence county. The people in the rural districts must have a way to get in and out, and at reasonable speed and cost, or they cannot prosper. It is time all were rising above politics and Mr. Aborhood project and joining hands on a road program that will cover the entire county.

NEPHEW ONE OF TWO
HELD AFTER SLAYINGFLOYD MAN'S BODY FOUND SIX WEEKS AFTER HE DIS-APPEARED.

Prestonsburg, Ky., January 30.—Will Blackburn and his brother-in-law, Jack Sherman, were held to the grand jury after preliminary examination here yesterday in connection with the murder of Dodge Hunt, uncle of Sherman. Hunt's body was found Tuesday in a woods near here. The man disappeared December 12, at which time he is said to have had more than $1,000 in his pockets.

An anonymous letter to C. H. Brannham of Emma, this county, led to discovery of the body. Hunt had been shot through the neck from the rear. The body was partly decomposed. Sherman, it was testified accompanied his uncle on a hunting trip December 13 and returned early in the day, saying that his uncle had decided to walk to Beaver creek, where he was employed.

Blackburn confessed he wrote the letter, but said he was afraid to tell the authorities about finding the body, because his wife, who is Sherman's sister, said Sherman would kill him if he did.

Blackburn's bond was placed at $1,000, and Sherman was held without bond.

A few years ago one of Hunt's sons was killed and another son was severely wounded in a shooting fray near here.

Army Officer Plays a Wonderful Game of Poker

The Ashland Independent publishes the following account of an alleged occurrence which should be headed, "A Sure Way to Win at Poker." The system described here is about the same as "heads I win, tails you lose." According to this story he held a full hand the last time and the other fellows saw it and laid down the coin.

"Come on, stick 'em up. I want ninety dollars out of this pot and the quicker I get it, the better it will be for you birds." So snake Bob Finley, it is alleged, last night as he broke up a lively poker game in Ironton with a big gut.

According to a report reaching the local police department last night, Bob Finley, army recruiting officer, with offices in Louisa, Ky., lost ninety hard-earned dollars at one sitting before the shrine of the Goddess of Luck, namely poker, some time yesterday afternoon in the city of Ironton. After thinking over his loss for some time, it is alleged that he returned to the game last night and at the point of a revolver forced the players to return the money he had lost.

The report continues by saying that Finley then forced Gracie Massie of Ironton, at the point of a gun to carry him to the Kentucky side of the river his machine. He then made his escape. Finley is a resident of Ironton but has headquarters at Louisa, Ky.

CRUDE OIL GOES DOWN THIRD TIME

The price of oil in Kentucky, as well as elsewhere, took another drop last Monday, the third since some time in December. Somerset is now $3.50 and Somerset Light $3.75, a third reducing of 25c. The Pennsylvania grade is down to $5.00 per barrel.

These reductions are getting severe enough now to effect development. Many operators are shutting down. Others are cutting wages.

No reason is given for the reductions in price of this high grade oil, of which the supply does not far exceed the demand.

Harvey Austin, who is charged with the shooting and killing of Charles Bertran, a telegraph operator, at Vanceburg, and who has been in jail in Maysville for safe keeping, was taken to Vanceburg where he was indicted for murder in the Lewis Circuit Court. POISON MOONSHINE
CAUSE OF DEATH

Dead as the result of drinking doped moonshine was the verdict of attending physicians in the case of Harry Clayton, employee of the Main Island Creek Coal Company, who died at a Huntington hospital Monday morning after a week spent there in an unconscious condition.

Clayton was removed from a hotel January 24, and taken to a hospital in a serious condition. He never regained consciousness.

W. S. DEROSSETT IS DANGEROUSLY ILL

A clipping received at Ashland from a Vicksburg, Mississippi, paper gives bad news regarding Mr. W. S. DeRossett, the only brother of Mrs. Edgar Hubbard, in the following words:

"W. S. DeRossett, for the past fifteen years a loyal member of the city police department is lying at the point of death at his home on South Washington street where he was taken at an early hour this morning, after being found lying unconscious on the sidewalk on the side of LaHatte's grocery, Grove and Walnut streets.

Faithful to his duty, the veteran officer had been on watch all night, with no one knowing what pangs tortured him and as late as 5 a. m. had cheerfully greeted Captain Joe Lauderdale when he was making his final round.

Mr. DeRossett, unconscious, with a bad bruise on the back of his skull caused by his fall probably, was discovered by Steer Commissioner John Evans and Jonas Stafford as they alighted from a street car about 6:30. The stricken man was still breathing although the two men thought at first that he was dead. Dr. Knox was hastily summoned and stated that Mr. DeRossett was suffering from concussion of the brain from the fall and that he also gave evidences of uremic poisoning.

As the officer has been known to be a sufferer from Bright's disease for years it is believed that he was seized with an acute attack of vertigo causing him to fall in the place where he was found. But little hope is held out for his recovery and much sympathy is expressed for his sorrowing wife and son.

Unless favorable word of her brother's condition is received very soon by Mrs. Hubbard she will leave for Vicksburg to assist in taking care of him.

Marriage of Miss McClure
and Mr. Don Preston

Gallup, Kentucky.

The wedding of Miss Dorena Jones McClure and Mr. Donaldson Preston was solemnized on Tuesday morning at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe P. McClure, near this place. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. John Cheap, pastor of the M. E. Church of Louisa. The ring ceremony was used.

The bride was attired in a handsome suit of blue tricotine, squirrel neckpiece, and small silver colored hat. She wore a corsage bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

The wedding was attended by a few friends and relatives, those from a distance being Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Daniel of Ashland, Ezra Hinkle of Philadelphia, and Misses Edith Cheap and Elizabeth McClure of Louisa.

The mother of the bride did all she could to make the occasion enjoyable, but the tears mingled with the smiles looked like the sun on a foggy morning and her laughter was like mingled strains of martial music and a dirge. But we who had nothing to lose, but all to gain, had a fine time.

The bride attended school in Louisa, Lexington and Charleston, W. Va., where she made many friends by whom she is much admired. For some time she has held a position as stenographer for a wholesale firm in Charleston, W. Va.

Mr. Preston has been employed at Van Lear in a coal company store, but he has accepted a position in Charleston. He is the son of Frank Preston of Graves Shoal and is a well known and promising young man.

They left over the C. & O. for Cincinnati and will be at home after February 10th in Charleston, W. Va. We wish them a long life of happiness.

He was a most faithful and efficient employee and had a host of friends who are deeply grieved at his passing.

CAVALRY TO FIGHT
THE NIGHT RIDERS

Unless restrained by injunction it seems quite probable that the Lawrence county troop of cavalry will be sent to Central Kentucky to kill or capture nightriders.

It is reported that an order has been issued from Frankfort to all the troops in Kentucky to get ready for this duty.

Gov. Morrow says he will suppress nightriding if it takes all the force he can command. The tobacco growers of Central Kentucky are on the war path and the test seems sure to come. Handling this problem has been a very difficult task in the past and we do not envy the Governor nor the cavalry the job they are facing.

OUR CIRCUIT CLERK
WINS A PRIZE

W. J. Roberts, Lawrence county's circuit clerk, won first prize of ten dollars offered by the Wayne, W. Va., News for the best article on "What I would do if I were editor of the Wayne County News." Mrs. R. J. Thompson of Wayne won second prize, and Miss Charline Frasher, formerly of Fort Gay but now of Barboursville, W. Va., received third prize.

Mr. Roberts is to be congratulated upon his success in this contest.

MISS ESTHER BOSTWICK
WINS IN CONTEST

The following from the Breckenridge (Mo.) Bulletin is of interest in Louisa where Rev. A. C. Bostwick and family lived before going to Breckenridge:

The four agriculture students that represented Breckenridge high school in the stock judging contests held in Columbia last week in connection with the Farmers Week program surprised their teachers and friends here with the splendid showing they made and the prizes and ribbons won.

There were 100 students entered the contests representing high schools from every part of the state. Miss Esther Bostwick won the championship of the state for girls, and also took third place in the judging of dairy cattle and first button hole sewing in a contest put on by the home economic clubs of the state. Her total number of points won was 447 and took 10th place in all contests.

Fred Kanower took first prize in judging dairy cattle, total number of points 453 and 9th place in all contests.

When we remember that these young people entered into competition with representatives of all the large high schools of the state, some of which have four years in agriculture, with $1200 appropriation from the state and many of which have agriculture graduates from the University as teachers we can then more fully understand that these young people have done exceedingly well.

It is worthy of note too that our young lady representative ranked well up with the boys in judging live stock, a proficiency which she demonstrated pretty thoroughly in a local contest some weeks ago. Miss Esther is certainly a very versatile young lady and excels in many other accomplishments.

READY TO START
MORE ROAD SURVEYS

The fiscal court and advisory committee last Tuesday authorized the sales commissioners to sell the remaining $125,000 of county bonds, so as to have money available for use on the Blaine and Point roads, as provided for when the bond issue was voted.

At a previous meeting the fiscal court empowered the County Judge to employ a competent engineer to survey these roads. It is presumed he will do this without unnecessary delay.

The bond issue money can be used first to provide permanent drainage at places needing it worst, and the remainder for grading. Then, if concerted action can be had, and if prejudice has not done its deadly work, we can get State aid and can also vote another bond issue to hard surface the roads.

The thing to do is to get busy at once on all this work. Getting it under way is the important thing. Starting right and getting a good survey and location is one of the most important parts of the undertaking.

PRISON SENTENCES
ARE ISSUED IN LOGAN'S
MOONSHINE WAR

Something of the nature of the war which the Logan county authorities have declared on moonshining was indicated last week when for the first time in the history of the county men convicted of illicit distilling were sentenced to the penitentiary. According to word brought to Huntington yesterday Judge Robert Bland of the circuit court of Logan County sentenced Bill Brewster and Chap Dingsess to the state prison. Brewster, the older man, was given the limit of the law, and must serve five years at Moundsville. Dingsess was sentenced to two years.

Judge Bland made a statement in connection with the imposition of sentence in which he indicated that persons convicted in the future on charges of this nature need expect marked severity.

One arrest was made, that of a woman, Mrs. Rachael Mount being taken into custody when a twenty-five gallon still and three hundred gallons of mash were found in her home on Crawley creek. She was released on her own recognizance. Officers say that she and her young sons were the only residents of the house in which the contraband was found.

The second still was found on a cave on a mountain top. There were three hundred gallons of mash ready to run, and many cords of wood, but the shiners had fled.—Huntington Herald Dispatch.

FUNERAL OF MRS. LEWIS.

The funeral of Mrs. Rebecca Lewis was held on last Friday afternoon at the M. E. Church South. The pastor, Rev. J. D. Bell, was suffering from such a severe cold that Rev. John Cheap, of the M. E. Church, was requested to conduct the services. He preached a very appropriate and comforting sermon.

Rev. A. Preston, of Patrick, father of Mrs. George Lewis, took part in the funeral services by invitation.

There were many beautiful floral offerings and the funeral was largely attended by people who knew Mrs. Lewis and desired to pay this last tribute of respect to her. The body was laid to rest on beautiful Pine Hill.

TUSCOLA

Such a variety of weather last week! It started in warm and pleasant, grew cold and the ground froze as hard as pavement, clouded up and Mr. Northwind brought snowflakes till they covered the ground to a depth of about six inches. Not yet satisfied, Saturday and Sunday were filled with showers with some high wind.

The world is a great stage and we are the actors in the complex drama of life. How soon some leave the stage never to appear again!

Eliene Womack came upon the stage November 8, 1919 and left it January 19, 1921. Her part was well played while she was on the stage. She had learned to talk and was a veritable bundle of brightness and sunshine. Like the beautiful rose that sends forth its fragrance to all she enlivened and brightened the lives of all with whom she came in contact.

Whether it is better to pass from the stage when words are being formed upon the tender lips or to go through the complexities of life and, at last with bent form and hollow voice often seeking charity, leave the stage we know not. God cares for His children.

The mortal remains of little Eliene were laid to rest in the cemetery overlooking the home of the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. V. B. Shortridge. It will rest till Christ shall come the second time and shall call forth the dead. Eliene will be in the number.

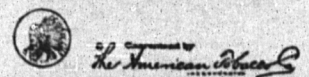

The bereaved have our deepest sympathy.

GOOD HEALTH HINTS

Oklahoma Farmer Gives Sound Advice on Avoiding Sickness.—Used Black-Draught 30 Years.

Cameron, Okla.—"I have used the famous Black-Draught for about thirty years, and certainly ought to know by this time what a good medicine it is," says Mr. T. L. Bostier, a well-known farmer of this place. Mr. Bostier has passed his three-score-and-tenth year, but declares his health still is good, "and I can say Black-Draught did its part."

"Where there is a lot of malaria, a liver medicine is a necessity, and I have never found one better than Black-Draught," continues the Oklahoma man. "It is one that I know to be reliable. I sure use it for the liver, stomach, constipation, indigestion, and it has done me a world of good. We use it for the family, and it gives satisfaction."

"Most trouble, or sickness, comes from the liver, and if taken in time can be avoided. That is why I use Black-Draught as I do. I am much pleased with results obtained."

The famous Black-Draught is purely vegetable. It acts on the bowels, gently stimulating the liver, and helps increase the normal flow of bile into the intestines. It assists in the digestion of food, and relieves constipation in a prompt and natural way.

Plenty of Louisa evidence of their worth.

Mrs. A. Waller, Railroad St., Louisa, says: "I have a very good opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills ever since they cured me of an attack of kidney trouble and I gladly recommend them. I had been feeling weak and run down for some time before the attack came on. My eyes began to get swollen and puffy underneath and I would turn quite dizzy, especially when stooping forward. I could see black specks before my eyes and my back kept me in misery. It ached so continually. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, so I sent to the Louisa Drug Store and got two boxes. I used Doan's as directed and they cured me up in good shape."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Waller had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

TAKE STOCK OF YOUR HEALTH NOW

Winter Brings Many Ills to Pale, Overworked People.

TAKE PEPTO-MANGAN

Fortify Your System—Good Blood Will Give You New Strength to Keep Well.

If you feel the least bit run down, not necessarily sick, but tired and blue and sort of down and out, it shows plainly that your power of resistance is low.

It is dangerous to go around that way. You don't want to do it. Make no mistake about it, when you feel yourself slipping into lazy habits, getting indifferent to the things you naturally like—no energy, no vigor, always tired—it is time to look out. It may not mean that you are sick or that you will be. But there are diseases that would have an easy time of it with your system when your blood has no fighting qualities.

You want to be well and keep well and feel strong. If you build up the quality of your blood by taking Pepto-Mangan you will be in trim to fight off winter ills. It has just the right ingredients to build your blood up with rich, red corpuscles.

Pepto-Mangan gives your blood the qualities it needs to pick you up and start you off on a healthy basis. You will notice the difference soon after you start taking it. You will have better color, better feeling, and more energy.

You can take it in liquid or tablet form as you prefer. Both have the same ingredients. But be sure you get the genuine Gude's Pepto-Mangan. Ask for it by that name—"Gude's Pepto-Mangan," and be sure the full name is on the package. Advertisement.

President Wilson has refused to pardon Eugene Debs, serving a ten years sentence for disloyalty to his country. Debs then uttered a violent attack on the President, thus confirming the judgment of Mr. Wilson that Debs is not a fit subject to be at liberty or to be relieved of any of the sentence imposed upon him by a jury.

The Allies have placed Germany's indemnity for the war at $6 billions, and Germany has greeted the announcement and demand with derisive laughter in her legislative halls. It will be to be funny when the Allies close the ports and take steps to collect the money by force. One report says Germany is looking to America for sympathy. We have not so soon forgotten the horror and suffering and cost of the awful war forced upon us by that country of tyrants. No true American will waste any sympathy there.

A prominent moving picture actor has started a movement for cleaner pictures and is going from city to city arousing public sentiment on the subject. He is making war on the sex pictures that are cursing the country and degrading its youth. He is finding a surprising response and is rightly heralded as the leader in a great cause. His investigations have already given the lie to the claims of producers that the public demands the salacious sex pictures that are so numerous throughout the world today. The great public is disgusted with these degrading pictures that the depraved producers are forcing upon them.

THE GOOD ROADS KNOCKER.

(This W. Va. circular has been handed us with request to publish.)

After God had finished the toad and the vampire he had some awful substance left with which he made the Good Roads Knocker. A Good Roads Knocker is a two-legged beast with a cork-screw soul, a water sogged brain and a combination backbone made of jelly and glue. Where other people have hearts he totes a neat little bundle of punk principles. When the Good Roads Knocker wanders down the street honest men flee, the angels in Heaven dash behind harps, and the usually calm Devil throws all the furniture in Hades up against the entrance. There is a Good Roads Knocker in your town. Send this to him.

DIFFICULTY IN GETTING JURY AT WILLIAMSON

In Circuit Court at Williamson all efforts so far have failed to get enough jurymen to try the Matewan murder cases. Hundreds of men have been examined during the last six or seven days. Most of them are akin to some of the 26 accused men. It is evident also that nobody in Mingo county wants the job of serving on that jury. It will probably be necessary to go outside the county to get jurymen. There was talk of summoning women, but the Attorney General ruled that women are not eligible.

This is Mrs. Billups' first trip east of the Rocky Mountains and she has manifested much interest in the various changes of scenery. Mr. Billups expressed his appreciation for the many courtesies extended him and his during their visit in Wayne county and vicinity and invites all who may at any time visit his neighborhood to call and see him. Speaking of crops, Mr. Billups stated his state yielded a large acreage of wheat this year, although many of the farmers will lose considerable money by holding back for higher prices, the market having somewhat declined since harvest time.—Ceredo Advance.

COURT UPHOLDS SURFACE RIGHTS OF MINE OPERATORS

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 1.—Rights of the owner of the underlying minerals to use the surface of land in connection with mining operations were upheld today by Judge Sampson of the Court of Appeals, who refused Ben McIntire, Letcher-co., an injunction to restrain the Marion Coal Company from building houses, uptiles, stores and roads on 140 acres of land, the mineral sold the coal company's predecessors, rights in which McIntire's father had. Under this contract, the court said, the company may use the entire surface, leaving McIntire free ingress and egress to his houses and buildings.

Charles A. Bowe was born in Boyd county, May 5, 1888, departed this life Jan. 17, 1921, age 32 years, 9 months and 12 days. He lived in Lawrence county the greater part of his life. He was first married to Miss Elizabeth Blankenship and to this union two children, Raymond and Lawrence Edward were born. His wife and oldest child died. His second marriage was to Miss Margaret Mullins and they were living at Wayland, Ky., and doing well when the death summons came to him and he answered the call. He was a true and devoted husband and often said he wanted to live to raise little Lawrence and to school and educate him. He told his wife he was prepared to go. He leaves a wife, one child, mother, two brothers and four brothers-in-law. He was the son of Sherman Bowe and wife, now Mrs. I. N. Anderson. His wife has lost a good companion, his baby a kind father, father and mother a dear son.

His body was brought to the home of his father-in-law, Dave Mullins, and Bro. Robert Cassidy preached his funeral there, after which his remains were taken to the Newcomb graveyard and laid to rest beside his wife and child to await the sound of the trumpet of God when he will come forth in a glorified form.

We cannot call him back. His noble life here is ended and his work on earth is done, but we can prepare to meet him or love's eternal shore where sickness, sorrow, pain and death are felt and feared no more.

VARIETIES OF COURAGE

"KERSMITH is an awful coward," said the retired merchant. "He hasn't as much spunk as a chipmunk. This morning I saw a man half his size twist his nose, and he never offered to defend himself. He trembled all over and was covered with a cold sweat."

"And yet, under other circumstances, Kersmith might show all kinds of courage," said the hotel-keeper. "It isn't safe to jump to conclusions about such things. A woman will climb a tree, and shriek for the police if she sees a mouse, and if a real peril comes along, she'll exhibit more courage in five minutes than the average man could dig up in a hundred years."

"There are scores of different kinds of courage in this world, and you can't expect one man to have them all. A man may tremble and cringe when threatened with physical violence, and yet stand up serene and magnificent when the assessor comes to the door, and there's nothing finer than that sort of moral courage."

"There used to be a blacksmith in this town who had a wide reputation as a fire eater. He wasn't afraid of anything, people said. If he heard of a promising bruiser anywhere in the countryside, he couldn't rest until he had mixed things with him. And he didn't ask for purses or other inducements. He engaged in combat just because he loved it, and was happiest when his nose was knocked to one side, and his eyes were bugged up so that he couldn't see whether he was going or coming. He acted the hero on several occasions, rescuing people from burning buildings, and saving gent who were drowning and his nerve became a byword."

"Well, in the fullness of time his teeth went wrong and his head swelled up until it looked like a squash. He bought about a million things at the drug store, and they wouldn't relieve the pain. The doctor told him he could have his sufferings ended in five minutes by going to the dentist's, but that idea turned him faint. At last he had to go, and the dentist told me he never saw such a doggone coward. That invincible blacksmith just had to be lifted into the operating chair, and was often as he could get his breath, he yelled."

"The dentist's chair takes the starch out of many a brave man. I used to have to frequent it a good deal before I bought these hand-made tortoiseshell teeth, and I saw some moving pictures when I was seated in the waiting room. Women would come in there as calm and cool as though they had just stepped in for a dish of ice cream. I have seen a girl graduate sit chatting comfortably until her turn came, and then she'd step into the chamber of horrors without turning a hair; and then some big policeman, who'd think nothing of fighting a revolver duel in the dark with a burglar, would come into the waiting room as limp as a fish, sweating ice tea and groaning every time he drew a breath."

"A man might easily get a lot of false ideas about courage in the dentist's waiting room."

"That man Kersmith, who stood and permitted a smaller man to twist his nose, has a sort of courage I'd give a lot to own. I've always wished I could make public speeches. I've a lot of pent-up eloquence inside of me that ought to be turned loose for the edification and instruction of the people. But every time I'm called upon for a few timely remarks, I'm scared stiff, and can't say a blamed word. I just gurgles and splutters like a sunstruck lunatic, and hate myself for three weeks after it."

"But when Kersmith is called, he rises without a tremor, and smiles sweetly upon the audience, and goes ahead saying what he has to say as though in his own arm chair by his fireplace. I'd be willing to have my nose and ears twisted several times to have his courage."

PRESIDENT ASKS AID FOR CHINESE

Wilson Calls On Kentuckians to Save 40,000,000 From Starvation

E. Y. MULLINS IS CHAIRMAN

Forty million Chinese face starvation and although relief be sent immediately, many millions will die before it can arrive. This is the summary of President Wilson's proclamation asking the Nation to help the Chinese and which appeal the Rev. Dr. E. Y. Mullins, president of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky., answered by accepting the chairmanship for Kentucky of the China Famine Fund.

Dr. Mullins in making public the President's proclamation, said no campaign, in the sense of a personality solicited canvass, would be held, but beginning early in February the people of Kentucky would be asked to send voluntary contributions to the State Headquarters in Louisville.

President Wilson's proclamation follows:

"A famine, alarming in its proportions, today holds in its grip several important provinces in China. The crop failure is complete, and the present distress, which is great, is likely, before winter has run its course, to become appalling. In fact, our diplomatic and consular agencies in China, inform me that the loss resulting from death in distressing form may run into millions of souls. It is certain that the local Government and established agencies of relief are unable to cope with the magnitude of the disaster which faces them."

"Under the circumstances, relief to be effective should be granted quickly. Once more an opportunity is offered to the American people to show that prompt and generous response with which they have invariably met the call of their brother nations in distress."

"The case of China, I regard as especially worthy of the earnest attention of our citizens. To an unusual degree the Chinese people look to us for counsel and for effective friendship. Our churches, through their religious and medical missionaries, their schools and colleges and our philanthropic foundations have rendered China an incalculable benefit, which her people recognize with gratitude and devotion to the United States. Therefore not only in the name of humanity but in that of friendship which we feel for a great people in distress, I venture to ask our citizens shall, even though the task of giving is not today a light one, respond as they can to this distant but appealing cry for help."

President Wilson in sending his proclamation to Dr. Mullins and through him to be made public, called on the seminary president to take charge of the campaign in Kentucky.

Norman H. Davis, Under Secretary of State, is honorary treasurer, and Vernon Munroe is treasurer for the national campaign. Joseph Burge, of the Preslee-Gault Company, is treasurer for Kentucky.

A LONESOME GIRL.

An Inch of Time

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

(© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Music hath pangs to make the savage," Marcia paraphrased, stabbing viciously the stocking she was darning. The darn was a refuge from the French-horn blating in the top-floor studio, the girls singing "Dearie" off key across the court, and the scratchy phonograph a flight below grinding out "Over There" for the third time since dinner.

"Had as well have gone to that silly concert," Marcia went on plaintively. "Still, it's something to have nobody making clumsy love to you. Joe, poor lamb, is a dub at it, but I have to listen—it would be as cruel to hurt him as to strike a baby that smiled at you."

From which it appears Miss Marcia Lane had a conscience, an awkward possession for a born flirt. Marcia loved the game if it were even reasonably well played. Joe Gregory would never, never learn to play it. He was so appallingly honest, so absolutely literal. Marcia loved to think of him as something betwixt a habit and a benefactor—any other way he weighed on her mind. He was as steadfast as thoughtfulness in rendering friendly services—Marcia writhed under some of them, but could not bring herself to hurt him by refusing them.

The evening was so sultry she had left the outer door on the chain. After a mild rap some one said through the crack of it: "May I come in for five minutes? No longer?"

"Why—I don't know," Marcia faltered, approaching the door. She saw a human segment, tall, well clothed, clean, part of a chin and cheek, excellently modeled and three-quarters of an eye, full-set underneath a dark line of eyebrows. He stood hat in hand, the hand slightly before him. She did not know him—but he was, somehow, not quite strange.

"Please, may I come in?" he repeated huskily, yet with something of strain.

When Marcia had unbolted the door he came through it and melted into the dusk of the corners, saying still huskily: "Keep time on me—and please remember it—well."

Marcia nodded. Suddenly she spoke out, in her own guarded voice: "Which of us is maddest? You for asking to come in, I for permitting it?"

"On the face—honors are easy," he answered, his eyes fast on the watch open in his hand. "But listen—I am your neighbor—you have heard me speak—in behalf of a poor dog."

"I remember," Marcia broke in eagerly; "I know your name."

"Forget it—please!" he admonished. "Forget also my asking asylum with you—unless you would like to remember that, by granting it, you perhaps have saved my life."

"Will I ever know how?" Marcia asked in almost a whisper. He glanced at her. "It depends," he answered. She stared into the court where still alleged music whined and blatted. She was glad of it now—its discords masked their low talk perfectly. Two minutes more had passed. A sense of noiseless motion made her half turn—to see her caller creeping toward her, so bent he was invisible to other view. "You are not afraid, I should not be here if you were cowardly," he said calmly crouching low at her feet. "I hope it is a long life you are saving with this inch of time you give me. However that may be, it is henceforth at your service."

He did not touch even her garment's hem, but she knew he was quivering all through. Presently he whispered: "You have a right to know my peril is—of my own making—one that manhood forbids me to protect myself from."

"A woman scorned?" Marcia asked under breath. He nodded. "She waits to kill me inside my door—she has a key. I balked her plan to run away with me. Outside her husband—a gulp over the words—'waits for—both of us—or either.'"

"Let me help you to escape," Marcia said dragging from a closet Joe's khaki duster and deeply visored driving cap. "Put them on—and go—"

I will swap out the hall light," she said breathlessly. As he obeyed she put up her face to his in the darkness, saying clearly: "Good-by, Joe. I'll surely be ready tomorrow when you come."

She had caught a light step, the merest rustle of garments, as she passed into the hall. The light there, again full, showed her a veiled and hooded figure rushing impetuously downward. It pushed rudely past the stranger without a glance at him, and was quickly swallowed in lower half-lit depths. Then came a smothered scream, drowned by the loud purring of a powerful car. Marcia rejoiced that hers were not street windows; whatever happened she could not see it; shuddering she sank upon a window seat and hid her face in her hands. Body and soul, she was shaken to the depths.

Now for a year she had built up an ideal about the man she had saved. Gordon Ammerly, lawyer, litterateur, society ornament, modestly rich, but ambitious as Lucifer. The type she could love—fate permitting. Now—she flung up her head, rose and shook herself free of something intangible. So he played with women's hearts and men's honor. In a shuddering revulsion she flung doors and windows wide, bathed her burning face, turned out the lights and sat pondering life and things till a low moon told her it was long past midnight.

When next Joe came—to be exact it was next afternoon—she saw him transfigured. He was clean as he was kind—there were no folded-down pages for his wife to discover. Moreover, he loved her so entirely, trusted her with such perfect trust. "I—gave away your coat and cap," she said to him, abruptly, to which he only smiled, saying: "It must have been the right thing—or you wouldn't have done it." And although he sensed subtly the change in her, the change that bespoke ordeal, he said nothing of it, but took her to dinner and afterward for a long, lazy wandering through the park. It was the first of many. Marcia found them infinitely restful. She found, too, that Joe had ceased to bore her—that she missed him acutely, longed for his coming, and felt happy in his presence though neither spoke a word.

Thus time's whirling brought to pass the inevitable end—a quiet wedding, a brief honeymoon, then the making of a new and delightful home, big enough for two, that by and by became three. Marcia in her happiness remembered her flight of adventure only now and then, but always thankfully—it had been the turning point. She knew Ammerly was abroad—permanently, said the society gossip. He had sent as a wedding gift a small chest of exquisite silver—thus she knew he too remembered thankfully. "I am trying to make my life worth your having saved it," he wrote in answer to her warm acknowledgment. Still it took her all aback, when her second baby came, to find that he watched over her though far away. "I have settled on you my old home, with enough money to live there in comfort. Please do it—cities are no places for young things which have hereditary right to grow up very fine. Knowledge that you and yours are there, safe and happy, is the only thing that can make me sure your inch of time was not spent in vain."

He died a year later, Marcia grieved for him sincerely—but her gratitude to him was not for his benefactions, but for Joe.

China's Clay Cliff Dwellings.

When we speak of houses built of clay in the United States, we mean brick. But along the banks of a certain river in the Yunnan province of China the idea is carried out much more literally, according to the Kansas City Star. There a lofty vertical cliff of clay affords homes rent free for several hundred people. The cliff is a bright yellow, so fine in texture that a bit of it rubbed between the fingers gives no feeling of grit. It is easily dug out with spades, and a great many cave dwellings have been excavated in the face of the cliff, overlooking the river. Some of them are two and three stories, the clay being so tenacious that thick horizontal layers of it furnish a series of floors. Nothing at all like these homes is to be seen anywhere else in the world. It is said. Scattered over the face of the cliff among the cave houses, are quaint buddhist shrines, with images carved out of clay.—New York Sun-Herald.

Temporary Truce.

Tommy was the worst of a lot of very bad boys at the little village school. Every day he worried the life out of his unfortunate teacher.

At last, however, came a day when the teacher thought the ringleader had repented.

"Teacher," he said, "I'm going to be a good boy today."

"I am very glad to hear it," smiled the teacher. "But why is that?"

"Well," said Tommy, as if ashamed of his promise, "I don't feel very well today."—London Answers.

Opportunity.

Master of Human Destinies am I, Fame, Love and Fortune on my footsteps wait. Cities and fields I walk; I penetrate Deserts and Seas remote, and passing by Hovel and Mart and Palace soon at late I knock, unbidden, once at every gate.

If sleeping, wake! If feasting, stop before I turn away! It is the hour of Fate And those who follow may reach every state.

Mortals desire, and conquer every foe Save Death. But those who doubt or hesitate Condemned to failure, poverty and woe.

Seek me in vain and uselessly implore; I answer not, and I return no more.—Ingalls.

Men and women are so fundamentally different. Impersonally we all acknowledge the fact yet when we get down to personalities few of us act upon our knowledge of it. It is undoubtedly due to this lack of perception that so many marriages fail. Each man and each woman judges the other by his or her own standards and feelings in the matter. Naturally there is trouble. If a man could realize that it is the little things that appeal to a woman and if he would stop just once in a while in his mad hurry to earn a living and show her just some little attention even though it may seem foolish to him, to her it means all the difference between heaven and a very mundane existence. The woman in turn should realize that a man does not see the smaller things and her constant endeavor to bring his attention to things which really matter very little to him seems to him like nagging. If each one could establish this fundamental difference firmly in their minds and make up their minds to be more tolerant with each other, probably a great deal of unhappiness would be avoided.

Pleasure is a good thing and may not with safety be slighted. But when given first place it is debasing and elusive. Business is good and demands the best powers of most of us. But whatever be the reward, we cannot afford to be its slaves. Fortunate indeed is the man who can master his desires and strike a happy medium between business and pleasure.

Real achievements come through focused energy. Do not scatter your talents and energies carelessly about over any number of trades and vocations. Focus your energies on the thing you wish to achieve and let nothing divert your interest from the main issue.

There is nothing so easy as to get behind with your work and once you are behind there is nothing so difficult as to get ahead of it. But the really careful man is the one who pushes his work rather than allowing his work to push him.

Why will some people continually worry about things that may never happen in the future and let their present affairs get into such a mix-up that some one else has to worry to get them out.

The keynote in the management of children is: Don't over-manage them. Let them decide as many things as possible for themselves and don't nag or worry them about trifling things.

Careful, painstaking work seems pretty tough for the youngsters but before they have passed half way thru life they will thank the mothers and fathers who required it.

Don't laugh at a man whose intentions sound far too grand to be achieved by him. Our achievements usually are less than our intentions so it's a wise man who aims high.

The person who never makes a mistake never makes anything. Success was never achieved without some risks and once in a while a risk is bound to fail.

There are too many people in the world who laugh all the way home and stop as soon as they reach the door.

If you want to be a successful married couple, do not herald the sacrifices you make to each other's taste, habits and preferences.

There is no condition in life so low but one may have hopes, nor none so high but may have fears.

Never deceive for a heart once misled can never trust wholly again.

Cleanliness is better than all the disinfectants known in science.

Ford
THE UNIVERSAL CAR

Announcement

Mr. Edsel B. Ford, President of the Ford Motor Company, gives out the following statement:

"The price of the FORDSON Tractor has been reduced from $790.00 to $625.00, effective immediately.

"This price change has been made possible through lower costs of materials and the fact that we are now located in our new Tractor Plant with greatly increased economic manufacturing facilities in immediate connection with our foundry and machine shops and large blast furnaces where iron is poured directly from the ore, giving us maximum efficiency with the power to reduce cost of production, and down comes the prices in line with our policy to market our products at the lowest possible figure without in any way affecting our high standard of quality.

"We are particularly pleased in being able to bring about this big reduction in price at this time because the farmer needs all the help we can give him and this big cut in price will be the means of placing a valuable power unit within the reach of practically every one of them, not to mention industrial and commercial concerns which likewise have benefited through its use and are already realizing, to a much greater extent, its value as a power and hauling unit. But particularly has the FORDSON Tractor proved a most valuable factor in the saving of farm labor, at the same time increasing the per-acre crop yield, as well as making possible a utilization of previously uncultivated land, to say nothing of removing no end of drudgery.

"There is no question that the use of machine power on the farm is the greatest advancement made in the development of agriculture, not only in money-saving and money-making results, as well as raising the standards of living on the farm to a much higher level, but because of its proved value in making every type of land more productive, and consequently our desire to place the FORDSON within the reach of all.

There is no change in the present Ford car and truck prices which are already at the lowest possible figure, and now with rock bottom reached on the tractor price a further reduction in price of either Car, Truck or Tractor is out of the question; in fact, the big price cuts have been made in anticipation of continuous maximum production, and if a large volume of new business is not obtained. Therefore, present prices of Ford products cannot be guaranteed against possible increases."

Increases may be necessary before long

Ask for the book, "The Fordson at Work," which will be supplied free of cost. Let us demonstrate the value of the Fordson on your farm, in your factory, lumber yard, coal yard or in any general hauling or power work you have to do, and let us have your order for a Fordson.

Moonshine Raid.

On Friday night about five thirty, S. J. Watkins, of Jackson, Ky., Federal Prohibition Agent, led a party of Catlettsburg police in a raid on the residence of Charles Selby, 50, just above the Catlettsburg corporation line with the result that Selby and Estill Riffe, 38, are now under a five hundred dollar bond each on a charge of moonshining and the confiscation of their still by the officers.

The raiding party consisted of S. J. Watkins, who also figured in the Green up county attack, and Patrolmen Kincaid, Johnson and Lambert surprised the two men as they were making a run. They grabbed their still and fled toward the river where they attempted to destroy it by throwing it in the water. They failed in this attempt because of the heat of the still and were forced to drop it in their flight. Both men and the still were captured.

JURY HANGS IN DR. WINNES CASE

REPORTS SAY THE JURY STANDS ELEVEN TO ONE FOR ACQUITTAL.

QUITLAL.

Harlan, Ky., Feb. 1.—At noon today the jury in whose hands rests the fate of Dr. H. C. Winnes, accused of the murder of Miss Lura Parsons, the mountain teacher, interrupted their deliberations long enough to ask that certain testimony be read to them.

The testimony of Mary Ellis, a young mountain girl, who said that she passed both Doctor Winnes and Miss Parsons near the convict camp and that they were fifteen or twenty minutes apart, first was read. The witness had said that Doctor Winnes was riding his mule about a quarter of a mile behind the teacher.

The testimony of Wilson Lewis, the mountain storekeeper, concerning remarks Winnes is said to have made on the return trip over the mountain from the school also was read. This was to the effect that Winnes hoped the teacher had fallen over a cliff and broken her neck, and also an alleged inquiry as to what punishment might be meted out to a person guilty of assaulting and killing a woman in the mountains.

Another bit of testimony read was that of Sheriff Howard, who reported that Winnes told him he was about thirty-five or forty minutes behind the teacher going over the mountain.

The jury on its first ballot last night was reported to have voted 11 to 1 for acquittal, but there is no confirmation of this report. Dr. Winnes and his family sat in court and took slight interest in various minor cases being tried while the jury deliberated in an adjoining room.

Doctor Winnes spent the night in the home of a Deputy Jailor, ostensibly in custody as his bond automatically expired when the case went to the jury. Throughout the long arguments of yesterday afternoon and last night the defendant remained unmoved and while the jury deliberated his composure seemed unshaken. Seated or standing behind him were members of his family and former neighbors and friends from Jenkins and Cincinnati.

"There is nothing in this case but a platform of suspicion, conjecture and suppositions and on this they ask you to take this man's life blood," said Dr. C. Jones in the opening argument for the defense.

Winnes Lauded By Counsel.

"Never in all my experience in court have I seen such a splendid character proved as by this defendant," said Robert Franklin, who prosecuted Caleb Powers and others in the Goebel trial, summing up the evidence for the defense. "Never have I seen such a weak case go to the jury. Yet convicts with ten times the evidence against them are excused."

A. Floyd Byrd, for the Commonwealth, called attention to the alleged contradictory stories told by the defendant. After paying a tribute to the justness of Judge Davis, and to the mountain people, he said:

"If I don't show you that the testimony and the facts unerringly point to Doctor Winnes' guilt, then acquit him."

"I also say give him liberty or give him death."

"Mr. Jones says his client is the victim of circumstances. He never told a greater truth in his life and it is a chain from which they cannot extricate him."

"Whom are you to believe in this case, a Cincinnati horse doctor or the sturdy mountain men. Dr. Winnes finds himself in the attitude of denying all witnesses no matter how good their character, whose testimony has been damaging."

Says Stories Contradictory.

Mr. Byrd traced Dr. Winnes step by step from Dillon across the mountain and back. He declared Winnes had told contradictory stories about his conversation at Dillon with the teacher. He said two witnesses had testified to seeing a newspaper in his pocket and that one was found beside the body. Miss Parsons left her paper on the train, Mr. Byrd said.

The attorney pointed to the mailing by Miss Parsons of the package at Dillon and connected Dr. Winnes' alleged inquiries after school about the mail with this.

"I tell you why Miss Parsons did not accept his invitation to ride. Because she saw something repulsive about his expression. The same thing caused vile words from his lips and heart as witnesses testify."

"It was seven to fifteen minutes between the time when the two crossed the convict camp," Mr. Byrd said the testimony showed. He charged that even if Dr. Winnes reached the school at 3 o'clock, whereas the Commonwealth alleged it was nearly 4 o'clock, that he still had nearly an hour to explain.

He charged Dr. Winnes had made conflicting statements at the school and that inquiring about the mail he wanted to know whether the starting point was above or below Dillon.

"He knew that the mail would come, but that Miss Parsons would never," the attorney declared dramatically. "Why didn't he tell Wilson when he met him with the other teacher crossing the mountain the next day that he knew she wasn't the same woman. He simply said he didn't believe she was."

Winnes Made No Inquiries.

"Why did he fail to make a single inquiry, but left on the next train out after his boat that he would go over to the postoffice and inquire about the package that he had mailed and if necessary would borrow a pistol and help search the country for her?"

"The only thing he inquired about was moonshine."

"Why did he ask Wilson Lewis, as they were riding back near the spot where she was killed, what they would do to a man who would mistreat a woman here?"

"Was there the face of a dead woman haunting him when he said further on, 'I hope she has fallen over a cliff and broken her neck for all the disturbance she has caused me to raise'?"

Seventeen witnesses (he read their names) have testified to finding mule tracks between the trail and where the body was found. They measured the tracks, and fitted the shoes of the mule Dr. Winnes rode, into them.

"The defense has failed in its efforts to show other mule made these tracks. That alone should not convict Dr. Winnes, but it is a link in the chain that should do it."

In his speech for the defense Attorney Jones said:

"If I thought Dr. Winnes was guilty of this hideous crime I would lay down my license and sacrifice all I have worked for before I would defend him."

Filled With Sympathy.

"Before I would prosecute a man I believed was innocent I would do the same thing for fear God would strike me dead. But I never had an experience that so filled me with sympathy in my life."

"I don't believe the father believes deep in his heart that Dr. Winnes is guilty. I would be willing to have twelve men feeling the same as Mr. Parsons in the jury box."

Mr. Jones took the time elements and declared witnesses had proved that Dr. Winnes left Dillon an hour or more behind Miss Parsons. He declared that his conduct toward her at the station was that of a gentleman.

Victim of Circumstance.

"Doctor Winnes is a victim of circumstance. Because he is the only man seen riding over the trail, he was made the 'goat,' and has been the 'goat' ever since."

"According to his own testimony, Jerry Reed, negro convict, put himself in position to have met Miss Parsons, and according to the truth, he is the man who pulled up the stake from the road, followed her up the trail and murdered her."

"He is left-handed. The undertaker told you how the blow was struck. Reed is the man who told the grand jury he ate his dinner at the air compressor and then told on the witness stand that he ate dinner at the camp."

"Why did they bring him off the hill? So it would appear that Doctor Winnes did not appear at the compressor until after Reed got back."

"The whole thing was fixed up in the prison camp. They wanted to hold their places and they had to show that all the convicts were under their thumb."

Calls Prosecution Farce.

"Even Mr. Moyer, Frankfort Reformatory Warden, denied me the privilege of going in the reformatory to find what I could unless a representative of his own was present. The convicts were browbeaten and subdued. They wouldn't talk under such conditions."

"This prosecution is a complete farce. I never saw a slimmer thing. I can't see what the prosecution is depending on to convict Dr. Winnes. I don't see how a man with a soul in him could prosecute him. A brute and degenerate committed this crime. You've heard all the character witnesses, old neighbors, who told you he was a good citizen, a gentleman."

"Regard your oath to God when you go to the jury room. Write your verdict as quickly as you can. Make it a record and send this old, kind-hearted man back home with his wife and two lovely daughters; back to that sick son of his quarantined in Cincinnati."

Found Clothing Prior to Murder.

When the afternoon session opened the Commonwealth introduced several rebuttal witnesses. W. H. Moyer, superintendent of the Reformatory at Frankfort, testified that Frank Brown, a negro convict told him that he found blood-stained underwear under the kitchen porch at the camp the morning before Miss Parsons was murdered.

On cross-examination, Mr. Moyer said he refused to allow the counsel for the defense to interview any convicts unless in the presence of a guard. Mr. Moyer said that Gov. Edwin P. Morrow called him into his office shortly after Miss Parsons was killed and said that Attorney D. C. Jones would like to have a talk with Jerry Reed.

"I refused Mr. Jones the privilege because Reed was under indictment for murder and did not have a counsel to defend him. The rules of the prison," Mr. Moyer said, "forbid anyone to have a conversation with the convicts unless a guard or a clerk of my office is present."

Frank Brown was called on the stand by the defense and testified again that he found the bloody clothes two weeks after Miss Parsons was killed.

Conflicting Stories Told.

He further testified that he showed the clothes to J. J. Jones and Robert Wright, negro convicts who worked in the kitchen. When Jones was put on the stand he denied having seen the underwear or Brown telling him about finding them.

Jones said that he and Robert Wright did not follow Miss Parsons up the trail, as Anthony Broughton, a discharged guard, testified Saturday. Jones said that he was sick in bed September 7. Several other negro convicts verified his statement.

The sick book at the camp, which was exhibited in court, showed that Jones had been marked "quarters" by the prison physician.

Several days ago Frank Brown testified that Joseph Bibbins, a negro convict, to whom he showed the clothes, helped him burn them in the rear of the camp.

When Bibbins was examined he denied the statement of Brown. Herbert Britton, alias "Jellie John," testified that he saw Dr. Winnes and Miss Parsons pass the prison camp but did not know what time it was.

"Did you follow her up the trail, the defense asked Britton.

"No sir."

"Where was J. Jones that day?"

"In the sick room."

Tells of Alleged Confessions.

John Johnson, another negro convict, known as Honest John, admitted that he had a conversation with J. C. W. Clem, preacher at Dillon, relative to several convicts now at Frankfort having confessed that they killed Miss Parsons.
